EPHEMERAL FOG IS AGAIN PIERCED BY COLD LOGIC

By ARGYLL CAMPBELL

Three propositions will appear on the ballot on Monday, April 10th, and about the first proposition only a few words need be said. It is to empower the City Trustees to build a city hall on Block 69 whenever the necessary money is available. This they cannot do at present because this property was acquired by the city for public park and playground purposes, and it cannot, under the law, be used for anything else without the consent of the electors. If this proposition carries it does not mean, of course, that a city hall will be built on Block 69, but merely that the city may employ it for such purpose when the requisite funds are on hand. No matter what action is taken on the other two propositions, this first one, I believe, should be voted on favorably by everyone.

Regarding the propositions to authorize a fourteen thousand dollar indebtedness for erecting and equipping a city hall, and a six thousand dollar indebtedness to purchase fire apparatus, a great deal has been said, and well said, on both sides.

I believe it is generally agreed that our present fire protection is inadequate, but there seems to be a difference of opinion as to what should be done about it. Several ingenious and novel suggestions have been offered as substitutes for the plan proposed, but unfortunately, or fortunately, according to your viewpoint, none of these substitute plans will appear on the ballot. The only question to be decided by the electors is whether, or not, the town will be authorized to purchase what is known as a triple combination chemical-hose-pumper apparatus. Either the voters will authorize this purchase, or else the town will have perforce to worry along with what it has, for it will not be practicable to buy any sort of really effective fire fighting apparatus out of the city's ordinary income, without materially increasing the assessed valuations on local real estate. This the City Trustees have shied away from in the past because if the city raises these assessments the county will do likewise, without any corresponding benefits to the local taxpayers. At present the assessed valuation of real estate in Carmel-by-the-Sea, is, on an average, about twenty per cent of its market value—a substantially lower valuation than in most cities and towns that I am familiar with.

Most of the arguments I have heard and read against the acquisition of the proposed fire fighting apparatus have laid stress upon the fact that there are but ten hydrants in the town, and most of these in the business section. Mr. Hogle in a recent article, however called attention to the fact—and a very important fact—that with the thousand feet of hose which the fire-truck would carry, about four hundred and fifty homes could be reached with a powerful stream of water from these self-same hydrants. Be it remembered, also, that there is no law on the statute books preventing the installation of additional hydrants.

The "pumper", therefore, would prove of present benefit to a great many, if not most, of the houses within the corporate limits, and the double chemical tanks could be employed for the protection of all.

I do not claim to know more about fire-fighting than the average voter, but I believe the firemen know more about it than either the average voter or myself—and the firemen are a unit, I understand, in recommending the acquisition of the proposed triple-combination apparatus. It poorly requires these public-spirited men, to suggest that they favor this issue so that they will have something new to play with. I believe they are for it because experience has taught them, as it has taught firemen elsewhere working under similar conditions, that this proposed apparatus is peculiarly suited to a town of Carmel's size and location.

That we need more effective fire protection than we have seems obvious. We will get it by voting in favor of purchasing the proposed fire-fighting apparatus—and it will cost the tax-payer, roughly, only eight cents per hundred dollars of assessed valuation, or eighty cents per thousand of assessed valuation per year, covering both principal and interest on the bonds.

Regarding the proposition to erect a city hall, the two main objections to it that have been urged are the expense involved, and the possibility that an architectural atrocity may be perpetrated. I believe, however, that there is little danger insofar as the latter objection is concerned, for there would be an outcry from our citizenry which would reach high heaven at the first faint indication of anything inartistic in the way of plans for our municipal building.

The present town hall is merely a temporary makeshift. The rent being paid for it is, in a sense, being lost to the city. At the end of any given number of years we will have had nothing for the rent money expended except the use we have had of the lower part of the building. The records of the town are, due to lack of space, and proper equipment, jumbled together in more or less confusion in spite of the heroic efforts of the Marshal and City Clerk to maintain them in order. The records of the Tax Collector and Clerk are thrown together in the same office, when they should be separately kept and safely stored. There is insufficient space in the Board room for citizens of the town to gather and make their desires known to the Trustees. The rent paid at present is thirty dollars a month, and there is little doubt that it will be raised in the not distant future. To house the fire apparatus will cost an additional ten to fifteen dollars a month, unless the city hall bonds are voted, and it is housed there. Forty-five dollars a month would go far toward paying the principal and interest on the proposed bond issue. For twenty-five dollars more per month we can have a town hall which will be adequate for years to come, which need not offend the taste of the most captious, and which will cost the taxpayer the gross sum of about 16½ cents on the hundred of assessed valuation, and less than half of that net when the foregoing rentals are taken into consideration. Then at the end of the bond period we will have on hand in the value of improvements what we have paid out in cash.

I believe the city hall proposition should carry, and that the fire apparatus bonds should carry with it. A proper civic pride, and the needs of the town call for the voting of the bonds.

CANDIDATES AND ISSUES

ASIDE from the election which incorporated the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, the most important election which this city is to have takes place next Monday. Nine citizens are submitting their candidacies for trusteeships, of whom four will be elected. It would not be wise to vote for any of the candidates because they are good fellows or good friends. The test of availability of any candidate is "What does he stand for and will he make a good trustee." Choose carefully.

The citizens are called upon to decide whether or not, with an assessed property valuation of three-quarters of a million dollars, it is necessary to purchase additional fire-fighting apparatus.

Also to decide is the proposition to house our officials decently, to transact our city business comfortably, and to protect and store our books and documents conveniently..

Every one of those who voted for the sand-dune and block-of-land purchase, should, to be consistent, vote for both the above-mentioned propositions. The town could have got along without the sand piles and the block of land; they were not crying necessities. Fire protection and a city hall are real necessities. The very citizens who incorporated this city to obtain these improvements are the ones who should be most heartily for the bonds.

The fact that these utilities cost something should not deter a single citizen from voting "Yes." The improvement is so great and the cost so small that you cannot afford to vote "No." It has been shown that the cost is so slight as to scarcely affect anyone's pocketbook.

This is not "booming." It is legitimate, natural, necessary progress. "Eventually—why not now?"

Trustees Hold Strenuous Session

The Board of Trustees met in regular monthly session Tuesday evening. They talked over the Ocean avenue paving; they talked over advertising for bids.

Dr. A. E. Burton, chairman of the city planning commission, made a report, and they all talked it over.

Indeed, it was a fine "talk-fest." But they all hope to be able to take some definite action next Tuesday night, so that the Ocean avenue paving can be finished by the spring of 1925.

The planning commission's report contains interesting features. They advocate the naming of cottages and the placing of sign-posts on prominent corners to take the place of numbering the houses. The matter of allowing signs of local business people to be placed on the highways was brought up. They all talked it over.

The city has acquired considerable property lately through a five-year tax delinquency. City Attorney Argyll Campbell was instructed to prepare deeds and arrange for the sale of this property at the legal time: No talk.

STAND-PATS CLAIM NEW APPARATUS NOT NEEDED

By WILLIAM L. MAXWELL

We have heard much lately regarding the bond issue for the new fire equipment, so perhaps one straw more may not be the one to break the poor camel's back.

The tax payers of Carmel are confronted with the necessity of deciding whether they need new fire apparatus, the original cost of which is to be $6000.00.

A little simple arithmetic at this point may help some of us in making our decision. The original cost of the equipment is to be $6000.00 payable on twenty-year bonds, the bonds to draw interest for twenty years at the rate of 6% per annum. he first year we pay the sum of $300.00 plus the interest, $360.00, making a total of $660.00. Next year we pay the regular $300.00 plus the interest on $5700.00, or $342.00, and so on for the rest of the twenty years, until finally we will have paid in the original $6000.00, plus the pleasant little sum of $3780.00 for the privilege of letting our debt run for twenty years. This will undoubtedly be very good business for the company supplying the equipment, but, will it be good business for Carmel?

Now, let us consider the booster-pump part of the equipment: It will no doubt be efficient and useful in that part of town where there are hydrants for the pump to connect, and where there will be a reasonable supply of water for the pump. Most of the town is without hydrants and the only possible connection for the pump will be the little half-inch or three-quarter-inch pipes that supply our houses from a two-inch street main. There is no booster-pump of the type contemplated that will operate on any such arrangement, so that in fighting fire where there are no hydrants, the booster-pump becomes worse than a farce, as any one who has any knowledge of such matters knows.

Assuming that we continue our normal rate of progress in the matter of invention, our equipment will be obsolete long before it is paid for, and even a chemical apparatus will have made great strides ahead. We will, then, undoubtedly, be confronted with the necessity of replacing our apparatus long before it is paid for and pile a new debt on top of the old one.

A chemical apparatus, in the form of a trailer that can be hitched to the back of a truck or auto, is a much more reasonable proposition to consider; one costing much less, and one that can be paid for easily by a direct assessment, and discarded, when necessary without severe pain or mental anguish.

One improvement that can be made without cost, is to divide the town into fire-zones of, say, two blocks each way, assigning a designating number to each zone. When the siren gives the general alarm, it can follow up with the number of the zone, so that all volunteers can go there directly and lend a hand without the present confusion and delay of hunting for the fire. This might save much valuable property, by the promptness with which help would arrive. Cards could be printed giving all the necessary data, and each house should have one posted so that tenants would know how to secure help in case of fire, and how to send in the alarm.

Reiterates Stand on the Bond Issue

By C. O. GOOLD

In my article of March 16th I had no intention of insinuating that our artists or writers were undesirables—much less selling their products elsewhere. Far from it; for outside money, no matter from what source it comes, is very desirable.

The idea I had in mind is this: That as they did market their products elsewhere, they were not dependent on Carmel as the rest of us are, therefore did not care about its growth or material prosperity, and were ready to "squat;" in other words, sit on any measure tending to increase the business interests of the community in general. This I still believe.

The truth is what hurts, and the shoe must fit, judging from the number that put it on. Mr. Williamson, in his clever play on words versus argument, was amusing. Now, Mrs. Cooke and Perry are old timers here and we honestly have a soft spot in our hearts for them, and we do appreciate the quarters they used to hand us in the good old times when Sam drove Toney and Mag over the hill. We also appreciate their efforts in Forest Theatre activities. But really, wasn't most of that energy and wealth of advertising thrown away? It's true that this advertising brought a goodly number of people here to look us over, but one look was usually enough, and they would soliloquize something like this: "Well, this is surely a beautiful place and I would never go away without buying a lot if it wasn't for those sandy, impossible streets."

Voters, it was our improved streets that put us on the map more than the Forest Theatre. A word to the wise is sufficient. Vote for progressive candidates next Monday.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

"Pelle, the Conqueror", is an epoch-making Danish tetralogy, a prose epic comparable to Romain Rolland's "Jeon Christoph". Pelle, the hero, is not an artistic genius as was Christophe, for Nexo, the Danish writer, desired to discuss not art but social conditions. Nexo's method, also, difers from Rolland's for Nexo has to do not with romantic dreams but with social righteousness, and to project his theories thereon, he has need of trenchant realism.

Of the two first volumes, which we have in the Library, volume I presents graphically the young Swedish boy with his aged father as laborers on a Danish farm. Tapestry after tapestry of the young boy's affecting environment is hung before us. And the charm and beauty of a young growing thing has the hard working child-cattleherder, tamer of oxen. Volume II is frankly a didactic presentation of the evolution of co-operation from trades-unionism with Pelle the hero. One never loses sight of the human Pelle who knew pitiful poverty, married young, moved multitudes of fellow workmen by his imagination and his earnestness, who was imprisoned when he became too powerful for his capitalistic competitors, served his term, and came out of prison to found and develop a co-operative industry of international importance.

"The Girls" of Edna Ferber is a thoroughly readable novel. One puts it down with the feeling that here is a sane and engaging presentation of the problems of the modern generation, as well as those of the two preceding generations, happily devoid of cheapness and vulgarity. The girls are three generations of Thrift family spinsters, Charlotte Thrift, seventy, Charlotte (Lottie) Payson, thirty, and Charlotte (Charley) Kemp, twenty. The life story of each Charlotte presents a telling commentary on the manners and morals of her generation. The charming great-aunt Charlotte had been condemned to disgrace and spinsterhood because she dared to kiss publicly her lover as he departed for the Civil War. Lottie, in turn, was not allowed to marry her lover because he was socially inferior and a Jew. But the joyous surprise of the book is the manner in which Lottie avoids technical spinsterhood. And Charley's lover is killed in France. What Charley makes of her life after this is left for the reader to dream hopefully about.

To one who loves Chicago and has lived on the South Side, "The Girls" will be full of enchantment, for the characters walk and ride familiarly through the parks and streets happily familiar and friendly with every corner.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO ADVERTISERS

On and after May 1st, 1922, the rates for display advertising in the Pine Cone will be $.50 per inch.

The cost of production, together with the increased circulation and quality of the paper, and the necessary additional equipment has made the above change imperative.

Six months ago much of the Pine Cone was syndicate matter; today we are putting out a paper filled with live news; new departments are constantly being created and a new interest on the part of our readers is being manifested. This all entails more expense in the production,—labor, equipment, stock, office help,—and if the Pine Cone is going to continue to serve the people effectively, substantial recognition must be made of its value as an Advertising medium.

We believe that our Advertisers are fully aware of the value of Pine Cone space and that they will be glad to continue at the new rates. We take this opportunity of thanking them in advance for their continued patronage and we assure the general public as well as our Advertisers that it will be our constant endeavor to supply our readers with the best and most valuable advertising medium to be found in the County.

MEET THE CANDIDATES

The Pine Cone believes that the people, especially those who have recently come to Carmel, will be glad to know something of the various candidates for our City Board of Trustees, who are to be voted upon at the coming election, and to that end the following is printed.

William T. Kibbler is the oldest in point of service on the present Board, having been a City Trustee for four years. Mr. Kibbler has always been identified with the "good roads" movement both before and since he came on the Council, and it was largely owing to his efforts that the present streets running north and south were paved. Mr. Kibbler is a heavy tax payer and states that it is his desire to protect his own interests as well as those of everybody else in the economic administration of the City's affairs. He believes thoroughly in the Bond Issue, but believes also that there are other vital issues at stake in the very near future, such as the sewerage and water systems.

George S. Dorwart, also incumbent, says he is not a radicalist, but believes in an economical administration with the amount of progress confined to the needs of the people. He says: "I believe in natural progress at the least cost possible, but I also believe in having the best kind of work. It isn't my policy to put a shingle on when it is necessary to repair a roof. Laws should be made, then enforced, the majority should rule and the motto of the City Trustees should be 'pro bono publico'."

William T. Dummage came to Carmel in 1898 and has been closely identified with the City's needs ever since that time. For the past two years he has been Secretary of the Sanitary Board, and is especially interested in the development of our sewerage system. He favors a sound business management of all the financial affairs of our City Government. He believes in keeping our natural state at the same time adopting all necessary improvements, and all without undue extravagance. "In fact," said he, "I believe that the city should be managed as any sound well-established business is managed."

T. L. Edler very emphatically states that the Trustees should represent the will of the people; that they should stand for what the people want, not for personal gain nor glory. Mr. Edler is one of the proprietors of the "Economy Grocery". He is running at the solicitation of his friends because he believes that a loyal citizen should be willing to run for office if need be and not stand on the side lines and criticize.

Miss Helen Parkes has watched the growth of Carmel for fifteen years, and has always been at the front when any question of the civic good should arise. Her ideas are constructive and we have asked her to give expressions to them in her own words. She says: "There are two reasons why I have become a candidate for Trustee: First, to show a proper appreciation for all the effort that has gone into securing the franchise for women, I think that one woman at least should be in the running for office on the City Council. Second, I believe that this is a crucial moment in the history of Carmel, a time when as a town we must know the ideals toward which we are working.

"Carmel has never been an ordinary small town and I doubt if we could successfully follow that pattern. We have no harbor to develop for the shipping industry; we are not in touch with an agricultural belt; we have no large grazing or pasture lands, no mining districts near us. What we have is so unusual and so precious that every effort should be made to conserve it, a district instinct with the possibilities of developing the arts of painting, of literature, of drama. Our output should be in conformity with our assets of natural beauty unhindered. We are now at the point where the commercial value of our produce has been discovered, and here lies the danger. If we permit ourselves to be subjugated by the spirit of commercialism the old Carmel with all its possibilities of artistic worth will be lost."

Perry Newberry is a writer of stories, a producer of plays, a builder of homes, and is now entering the political field, though not for the first time in Carmel, as he was active in the campaign to incorporate Carmel six years ago. Mr. Newberry has also been for many years, and is now, an efficiency expert and auditor for the Grosjean Rice Milling Company of San Francisco, although he has been here for the greater part of the time since 1910, and has always identified himself with the life and interests of the people of this community. He states in his announcement that he stands for the retention in their simplicity of the natural beauties of the place; he believes in low taxes, and few special assessments. He is one of the most prominent leaders in the anti-bond fight and says: "Don't vote for me if you want Carmel to become a city; if you want its growth boosted; if you wish for its commercial success."

Mr. W. L. Maxwell is an officer of the United States Coast Guard with a record of twenty-five years of active duty, twenty of which he spent at sea. He has had many interesting, and some hazardous experiences in various parts of the world, and served through both the War with Spain and the World War. During the World War he was for months, Engineer Officer of one of the Naval Training Camps, where he helped in the training of 25,000 men, including 10,000 men and 350 officers for special engineering duties, under his personal direction. After the Armistice, he was transferred to the Submarine Base at San Pedro, Calif., as Engineer Officer, and in charge of Engineering Efficiency of the Base and all vessels attached. At the close of 1919 he was retired from active duty owing to defective eye sight, and has made Carmel his residence since then, and is a property owner and voter.

Mr. Maxwell thinks that Carmel's future, like its past, depends upon maintaining the natural beauties of the place and its freedom from the many tyrannies of city life, incuding ill advised municipal indebtedness.

H. W. Askew has been a resident of Carmel two and a half years. He is a property owner and has served for some time on the local Sanitary Board. He believes firmly in the fire protection plan as provided in the proposed bond issue, and favors other necessary improvements, such as sewers, etc.

Mr. Askew desires to make his position clear on the woman suffrage question, and to that end has issued the following statement:

"I wish to deny as an untruth the rumors circulating around about me saying anything against woman holding office or woman suffrage, as I am a strong advocate of both."

C. H. Yates has been a resident of Carmel since 1919 and has been a property owner since that time. He believes that a majority of the people should rule; he believes that necessary practical improvements should be made whenever needed. He says:

"It is a waste of time and money to cart the dirt from the foot of the hill to the top after every storm. We should spend the money for good streets with the control of flood waters. Sewers and other improvements vital to the public welfare should follow, and with all this the natural beauties of the town should be preserved."

Mr. Yates has never entered the political field before. He has consented to run for trustee to show his loyalty to Carmel, and in the interest of good citizenship. "In fact," said Mr. Yates, "this is my first offense."

CAESAR AND CLEOPATRA CAST IS STILL UNASSIGNED

The directors of "Caesar and Cleopatra," announces through Edward G. Kuster, president of The Forest Theater, that no roles in the production have been assigned, even provisionally, to anyone whomsoever, and that all considerations pertaining to the casting of the famous Shaw drama are being postponed until all Carmel residents shall have had ample opportunity to indicate their desire to participate in the play in such capacity as they may state. Unauthorized rumors to the effect that the cast is already substantially made up are reported to be standing in the way of applications by a number of talented people, and in order to prevent any misunderstanding the directorate has authorized the Pine Cone to announce that the time limit on all applications for roles, whether for principals or minor parts, has been extended to April 15, after which date the directors will be free to form the cast of the production. The cast will comprise over sixty people. There will be no further extension of the time limit above stated.

EXHIBIT OF SCULPTURE, SCULPTOR, ETCHINGS

An event of unusual interest to Carmel is the reception to Kamuela Searle, the young sculptor who has recently come to us from Hawaii, at Arts and Crafts Hall next Sunday afternoon, three to six o'clock. Aside from the reception to Mr. Searle there will be exhibited the bust of Grant Wallace, lately completed. Frederick MacMurray will render several violin numbers, and those present will also enjoy the remarkable collection of etchings and monotypes and wood blocks contributed by the California Print-Makers.

Ralph M. Pearson, etcher, from Taos, N. M., will be guest of honor with Mr. Searle. He will give a short talk on etching, and will have a group of his pictures on exhibit.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN DRACE

XIV.—VERMONT

THE derivation of the name Vermont comes from the French "verts monts," or green mountains, and it was likewise the French who were probably the first white men to see those lofty landmarks which so appropriately give this state its name. This was in July, 1609, when Champlain made his memorable voyage up the lake now called after him.

The first permanent settlement was made in 1724 at Brattleboro, where the Massachusetts colony established a fort as a buffer against invasion from the north. The territory used was part of what was known as the "Equivalent Lands," which were sold at public auction in Hartford for about a farthing an acre, the proceeds being donated to Yale college. Shortly after this, settlers pushed eastward from New York across Lake Champlain and westward from New Hampshire. This led to disputes between these two colonies as to their boundaries. Under the leadership of Ethan Allen New York's claims were resisted by a local military force, which proudly called themselves "the Green Mountain Boys." It was these same men who played such a brilliant part during the Revolution.

In 1777 a formal Constitution for the state was adopted and Vermonters are proud of the fact that theirs was the first of the states to prohibit slavery by constitutional provision. For a number of years Vermont remained as a separate republic, but in 1791 it was admitted to the Union as the first addition to the original thirteen states.

In size Vermont has 9,564 square miles, and its congressional delegation numbers four. It thus casts four votes for the president.

Any person interested objecting to said work or improvement may make written objections to the same within ten days after the expiration of the time of publication of this notice, which objections shall be delivered within said period of time to the said City Clerk.

All of said proposed work and improvement shall be done in pursuance of an act of the Legislature of the State of California entitled "An Act to provide for laying out, opening, extending, widening, straightening, or closing up, in whole or in part, any street, square, lane, alley, court, or place within municipalities, and to condemn and acquire any and all land and property necessary or convenient for that purpose," approved March 6, 1889, and the amendments thereof.

WHY JOHNSON OPPOSED FOUR-POWER TREATY

San Francisco—(Special)—The following letter explaining his position upon the Pacific Four Power treaty has been sent by United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson to Hon. W. W. Morrow, Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, who presided over a mass meeting in favor of ratification in this city:

I am always very glad to have the views of any considerable number of my constituents, and, indeed, of any individual Californian. I recognize the right of every man to his opinion and the public expression of that opinion. In a democracy like ours it is not only appropriate but helpful and healthy that individual and mass opinions be transmitted to those who briefly hold official power.

Conscience Guide.

But I recognize, too, that one who occupies a position as United States Senator must, in the questions which come to him, reach his decisions and cast his votes as his judgment and his conscience dictate.

He would, indeed, be a poor and contemptible representative, who yielded his conscience and his judgment to every varying popular gust, or to every demand which might be made upon him by groups or individuals.

I do not question the sincerity of your opinion, and that of those who met with you last night, and I welcome your public expression of it. Equally, of course, I take it, you do not question the sincerity of my opinion, and if I were cowardly enough not to give expression to it because anyone or any number of my constituents, however many or powerful, demanded otherwise, I would forfeit your respect, and what is worse and what I value more, I would forfeit my own self-respect.

You and I together but two short years ago, faced what seemed to be a rising and irresistible public clamor for a League of Nations. Without thought of the effect, politically or otherwise, we fought then what we believed to be a danger and a peril to the republic.

League History.

The exact arguments that were then made, the methods to deter and to silence us are those now employed. We were told then that there was a new state of mind in the world; that disputes between nations would be solved through friendly conferences rather than by arms; and that the medium of their solution was the League of Nations.

We were told then by some of the very gentlemen who participated in your meeting, and by others who are now speaking in California, that if we did not join the League of Nations our beloved country was headed straight for a war. You and I fought on, though, because we believed we were right and because we wanted to preserve our cherished heritage just as we had received it, for those who follow us. You and I desired to keep our nation, not aloof from others, but free from their controversies, their spoliation, their imperialism, and their oppressions.

We fought the good fight then, and we won it. Time demonstrated every lugubrious prophecy and every dire prediction made by those opposing us to be utterly without foundation.

Today I believe substantially the same situation confronts us. We are by degrees being taken into what two years ago we so fortunately escaped. This step in the Pacific, in my opinion, is but the prelude to others. If we are to enter the league, I prefer to take my beating standing, and with head up, enter the front door, rather than creep in the back.

Seeks Peace.

I recognize fully the peculiar psychology with which we have to deal today and I sympathize wholly with the yearning of all good people forever to put an end to the horrors of war. I do not oppose and I never have opposed consultation among nations. I have always sincerely advocated it and do so now. I am unable to understand why, if we seek consultation, we do not plainly say so, and when pretending only a desire for consultation, we undertake to maintain British and Japanese possessions.

Instead of conference and consultation alone the treaty before us provides for maintaining territory and meeting aggression. I do not want to put any obligation, direct or indirect, express or implied, upon our country, upon our sons or our grandsons, to meet aggression against British or Japanese possessions, and I will not do so.

With the past so indelibly stamped in my memory, with my knowledge of the world situation, a knowledge perhaps better than that of my constituents, I cannot, by my vote, take my country into a partnership with other nations which will inevitably lead us into unknown perils and do just that against which you and I so vigorously fought.

The dangers, aye, the consequences of just such agreements as the one under consideration, are written in all the bloody pages of history.

U. S. Unfettered.

I oppose this treaty which would carry us into a pact no stronger than which was in part responsible for the great world war, because I would save this nation, and all the nations of the earth, from future murderous horrors and devastating wars. In the name of the ten millions slain in the great world war, invoked by you, in the name of the hallowed graves of the Americans who unselfishly gave their lives, I would preserve my country to play its great part in its appointed destiny, free and unfettered, the leader of the nations of the earth, the hope of civilization. It was to this, and by this, to prevent a recurrence of the awful tragedy from which we have just emerged, I gave my substance and my effort in the difficult contest we made together.

I believe, and I am sure, on reflection, you will agree, that our country can aid the world better with our ideals untouched, our independence of action undiminished, under the policy by which we have reached our present high eminence and great power, than as a partner of Britain and Japan.

I may have been mistaken in my position two years ago; I may be mistaken now; but then I fought, and now I am fighting, as an American for my America, and God helping me, I will continue that fight until I die.

MRS. DE YOE WRITES OF EUROPEAN PILGRIMAGE

A number of letters have been received from Mrs. Rose De Yoe, all of them interesting and full of very fine descriptions of the countries through which she is passing. The "Empress of France", the steamer which carried the party from New York, was the first large passenger boat to call at the port of Los Palmas, Canary Isles, since the war, and the party, numbering about 800, received a real ovation. The O Seculo of that date prefaces a large front page article descriptive of the festivities with the following:

"Portugal, the country of navigators and heroes, of traditions and marvelous scenery, home of the ancient discoverers of distant lands, salutes free America, the land of peace and progress, the home of civilization and liberty. * * * *

"We therefore, welcome the American excursionists and their great and noble country."

Mrs. De Yoe writes at some length of her varied experiences in Lisbon, Seville and Granada. Of Seville she says:

"I won't try to tell you in detail—the wonder and beauty of the Cathedrals and Alcazar are still with me and I only wish I could in ever so slight a manner convey an idea of them to you. It is the season of the Mardi Gras and you can know what the crowds on the streets are already if you will hark back to a New Year's mob in San Francisco, except that it has the color and joyousness of a Latin race."

She gives a detailed and most interesting description of Granada and the Alhambra:

"To even attempt to describe the Alhambra is beyond me—the grandeur and magnificence of it all still possesses me. From almost any point of the City, we can see a portion of what looks like a vast ruin, for remember the walls were laid 400 years ago and of course show the effect, but it only adds to the interest. Our road wound up and up—at first between narrow streets, interesting because they were so unique—and then between avenues of trees which were part of an immense park. We entered first into a large court and then our pilgrimage began. Corridor after corridor—dark narrow passages in which there was no light—beautiful rooms beyond number, each one more interesting than the one before—open courts containing fountains and laid out in most beautiful gardens. There were ruins without number which had not been restored, but a great many of the rooms with the marvelous inlaid work, carving, mosaic, etc., were in almost perfect condition."

THE BOOSTER PUMP IN OTHER TOWNS

We are paying $125 per month for Police protection and get it. What are we doing to protect our homes against our greatest menace, Fire?

Atlanta, Georgia, purchased its first combination motor pump in 1910 and now has five of these combination outfits in service.

Boston, Massachusetts, recently purchased six of these combination pumpers on one order.

Beloit, Wisconsin, just bought a Stutz triple combination pumper at a cost of $11,200.

The proposed booster pump has a record of carrying water through 2260 feet of hose and then throwing a stream ninety feet, and drawing from a lake furnishing no pressure.

Santa Barbara, California, has a modern and completely motorized Fire Department, but the Chief Engineer states that the triple combination pumper is always the first piece of apparatus sent out and is considered by the members of the Department as "the one best bet".

The Year

Vagrant Impressions of Pine Nut

Which Shall It Be?

Gaze on This—

It is all over! The Bonds have carried and we can now settle down to minor controversies such as the dumping of our garbage on our neighbor's lots and the right of a partner to bid "no trumps" with only three aces and a guarded King.

The first thing of any importance will be to get our human angles readjusted. We will be obliged to exercise great care in remembering just who we have decided to cut off of our calling lists, and it will be almost impossible to bear in mind just whom we have stopped speaking to. This last situation can become very embarrassing at times. You are likely to have all kinds of mix-ups. The fellow that howls the loudest with you for the bonds is apt to disagree with you as to the proper kind of music for the Choral Society, and you are torn between your duties to the Bond Issue and Tom Cator; then you might agree with the Pine Cone in wanting to wage a war against the owners of the signs that are littering up the Highway and yet think that we had not been honest in our Bond arguments. You'll slap Charley Goold on the back and say: "Hello, old top. Fine article you wrote for the Pine Cone. Geehosaphat! You certainly know how to give 'em facts", and then five minutes after that you'll have to go to him with a protest from the beauty lovers that he's disfiguring the landscape on the side of his office with a movie sign.

You'd never forgive yourself if your neighbor had voted against the bonds and then you forgot and took a plate of hot soup in to his wife when she was ill,—and the worst of it all is that you'll be apt to forget and do that very thing. Ain't it the limit?

But the bonds have passed and we are now to be able to throw our cigarette snipes away in peace. Pooh, Pooh! We should worry if the camper leaves a glowing ember. We should worry to see sparks fly from a neighbor's chimney. No longer will the siren strike terror to our hearts. Henceforth it will be as musical as a fairy chime, for have we not the Booster pump to save us and our household gods.

Now the small boys can find joy in watching the engine cavort majestically down Ocean Avenue, William Kibbler, representing the dignity of the city's law-making body, seated at the wheel, with Chief Nichols in Curtis' pony-carriage, leading the procession, B. W. Adams struggling madly with the hose in the rear, and Bruna following close behind in competition with the fire bells. Then when the engine arrives at the conflagration! What deeds of heroism we may yet chronicle. Sam Miller may rescue a fair lady from a burning shingle and become a hero, and Bob Leidig may yet enjoy the proud distinction of ruining two suits at every fire instead of one, especially if the Booster pump gets turned in the wrong direction. Oh, we're certainly going to have great times.

And then the artistic thrill that will run up and down our spinal columns when we contemplate the new City Hall would reach from here to New York and back again if laid out in a straight line (the spinal columns). It (the City Hall) must have a belfry which to be truly Carmelish must be the habitat of bats as well as bells, and a lean-to with an outside hook on the door for the confinement of law breakers, and a room for Justice Hand to represent the majesty of the law, and a council chamber for the Trustees and the Pine Nut to enjoy light refreshments and a stall for Gus' horse, and a rest room for Saidee to powder her nose. Then the grounds must be wire fenced and nice little garden beds outlined with abalone shells and containing standard roses and the newest varieties of dahlias, with comfort stations scattered around promiscuously. The City Planning Commission will probably go in strong for color effects on the outside of the hall, with the clapper of the bell painted lavender and mauve magenta curtains at the window. The Pine Cone doesn't intend to do any dictating. We aren't particular about the details just as long as the tourists are satisfied.

The bonds have passed. We must now lose no time in placing some electroliers on Ocean Avenue—we really need 'em to get to the beach—and while we're about it, what's the matter with clearing out this forest and making a REAL town, like Santa Cruz, for instance. If we tried and would all pull together, we might even attain the proud distinction of a "tent city".

Hooray for the next Bond issue.

—Then on This

It is with great satisfaction that we announce that the Bond Issue has been defeated. Whoever said that the Pine Cone favored the Bonds? Haven't we argued straight along that we were opposed to fire protection? We're able to place all of a thousand dollars insurance on our plant and we'd much rather see it burn and get the thousand than have Brownie's nerves worn to a frazzle every time that fire engine would go dashing down the street. That dog is so darned temperamental. At every peal of the church bells, he howls like a soul wanting to be released from purgatory; and on Armistice Day, when the siren sounded for prayer, Brownie wailed in so many keys that one old gentleman near by thought that the Star Spangled Banner or the Doxology or some other going-away-piece was being sung, and he started up his Ford, which pretty nearly busted up the festivities and didn't add at all to the gayety of nations. So——no more of this fire protection talk for the Pine Cone, —and if we don't want it, certainly no one else should have it. That's a cinch!

But we digress. We wonder if it is generally known that the Bond issue lost by one vote. Poor Mr. Kibbler! He must feel badly. He got so excited at having all of his machines laid up at once and having to walk clear from his house to town that when he went to the polls he forgot which side he was on and voted against the bonds. He's shrunken to a wisp since election—he feels it so!

Anyway, the thing is done and we don't want it undone. We can now settle down to a good long Rip-Van-Winkle and know that when we come out of it twenty years hence, there will be no Booster-pumping, no "fog-lifting", no "squatters" wriggling under the crool, crool lash, no "Cold Logic" poking out its hydra head. All will be serene and peaceful. Five or six more stories may have been added to our "Lists of Current Fiction", Bert Heron may have produced by that time the annual Forest Theater Play, the San Francisco papers will have forgotten that Carmel is on the map, and W. L. Overstreet may have gotten an appointment on the Ways and Means Committee of the State Legislature, but the divine afflatus of Carmel will be still unspoiled. The poet may sing his "Apostrophe to a Sand Flea", the painter may paint his "Ship far out at sea", or his "Sand Dune Verbenas", and the literotty may still sell in New York and buy in Carmel, all undisturbed, like Sleepy Hollow, by the passing current.

Davis, Schwenniger and Edler can form a partnership for we don't need but one grocery (Art is long but food is fleeting), and we'll let the dear little spiders build their cobwebs over the rest of the doors on Ocean Avenue. The half-dozen remaining boards of sidewalk may by that time have vanished, and the old horse trough will have once more come into its own when the Memorial Fountain shall have fallen into decay.

J. F. Devendorf will take the occasional interloper around and will say with pride:

"You see we have triumphed over progress. We have become the great modern example of a city that has achieved the distinction of standing absolutely still. You see that we are unique,—individual—there's no place in the world quite like us. Better buy the balance of my holdings. I'll sell 'em to you cheap."

Oh, for the good old times when we bought the best old-fashioned molasses candy to be found in the world at Curtis'—when we learned the news of the great outside world from Leidig's Bulletin Board. One day it would read: "Republican convention nominates Taft for President: three large cans of Carnation Cream for ten cents." The next day it would be: "War in the Balkans: two fire shovels and eight feet of garden hose for sale cheap; Be on hand early, tonight to Forest Theater rehearsal."

When we think of the joy of winding our labyrinthine way to John Williams' fish platform and of becoming the sole owner of a rock cod on Fridays, and of our triumphal departure from the bakery with the only loaf of bread in town.

Let the light and phone wires come down. The silvery moon shall shed its radiance and the "cares that infest the day" shall vanish when the turmoil of the outside world cometh not to our ears. What matters a new Post Office, or a Booster pump, or a City Hall. It is enough that the sea will still be blue, that the sun will still set behind the ephemeral fog, and that the summer tourist shall be no more.

Nix on Bond issues.

THREE PLAYS IS SCHEDULE FOR LITTLE PRODUCERS

On Friday and Saturday evening, April 7 and 8, the Little Theater of the Arts and Crafts presents its monthly program.

The bill for this month will be "Will o'-the-Wisp," by Doris E. Halman; "In the Zone," by Eugene O'Neill, and "Manuekin and Minnekin," by Alfred Kreymborg. The first two will be produced by Richard Bentinck, the third by Mrs. P. K. Gordon, under the direction of Mr. Bentinck.

All three plays are interesting, each in a different way. "Will-o' the Wisp" has an all woman cast; "In the Zone"—all men—while "Manuekin and Minnikin" has one man, one woman and a clock The first is poignant, delicate, weird; the second is strong, full of the color of the sea and its life—simple, tragic, convincing; the third is a fantasy—far removed from life, yet so nearly related that one is fascinated—as you are by shadows or echoes or the changing pictures in a pool of clear water.

Effie McLean, Marian Boke, Grace Wickham, Christine Burton play in the "Will o'-the Wisp." The all-men cast consists of Joe Mora, Hobart Glassell, George Seideneck, Allan Griffin Hal Bragg, Cornellus Botke, T. G. Fisher. Mrs. P. K. Gordon and Evan Mosher play in Kreymborg's Bisque comedy.

The Little Theater hopes to have music to fill in the twenty-minutes interval which has to be for the change in the scenes. Curtain will rise promptly at 8:30.

Let's Go!

The Little Theater has wisely acceded to the insistent demand for a reserved seat section at its performances, and this privilege is now available for an extra "quarter." Sale of seats for local performances at Pine Cone office has been discontinued on the score of interference with the wheels of industry—a more suitable location having been secured at the Basham candy store, where there's plenty of industry but no wheels. Prices 50c and 75c—get them now and buy a few shingles for the new community playhouse.

Beachy Birthday Party

Moira Wallace's twelfth birthday was celebrated last Sunday with a beach picnic, ice cream, hot dogs, Spanish beans, 'n everything. There were about twenty guests besides Pine Bone Bill Nye, who was the liveliest kid in the bunch. Refreshments, games and swimming were the order of the day; then the order was reversed and they got back to the "eats" again, which same produced disorder. After all that, it is unnecessary to state that "a good time was enjoyed by all." The party was chaperoned and enjoyed by Mrs. Margaret Wallace and Misses Elizabeth White, Genevieve Daniel and Edith Chilver. "Carmelo" Searle butted in long enough to spill the beans and otherwise clean up the commissary, including the last lonesome wienie.

Chicago has six of the triple combination motor pumpers, and recently let a contract for eighteen more of the same type.

Lessee Purchases Pine Inn Property

John B. Jordan, heretofore lessee of Pine Inn, is now the owner of that property -- lock, stock and barrel. This includes the four hundred feet of land upon which the hotel is situated and two hundred feet of the block below. Arrangements are being made for additional housing space and a more advantageous location of cottages below the hotel proper.

Mr. Jordan was away for a couple of weeks in Los Angeles and in the bay cities arranging his business affairs with a view to settling here permanently. When he returned he said to a Pine Cone representative:

"Well, I've been away, but I'm back to stay—I guess for forever. This place certainly looks good to me after the strenuous city life."

Mr. Jordan is peculiarly fitted to the exigencies of hotel life. He has had experience as manager of the government hotel at Clyde, and has also been "mine host" of Hotel Claremont, Berkeley. Any man who reads Shakespeare seven days in the week really belongs to Carmel, so we congratulate the town and Mr. Jordan, and we make bold to state:

John B. Jordan has found his place.

BOOSTING SAN FRANCISCO

"Arthur Maitland is bringing his five years stay in San Francisco to an end tonight," we read in the Chronicle. He is going to Portland, Maine, where the finest theater in the country devoted to literary plays is being built for him.

Is it not a shame that a city like San Francisco is not able to keep a Maitland, a man "who has given the greatest plays of the day, plays that are seldom done in the commercial theater," as the Chronicle says. Portland took San Francisco's famous organist, Edward J. Lamaire, away; it takes now Maitland. But San Francisco goes on building its palatial movies. Boost San Francisco, the city of the "Granadas!"

TILLY POLAK.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING ACTIVITIES

Beautiful in its coloring, ruggedly simple in its lines, massive but gentle in its proportions, the new home of Mrs. Lotta Shipley stands out on the sand dunes, with the Pacific Ocean breaking down below, Cypress Point at the right, and Lobos at the left. In fact, Mrs. Shipley is fortunate enough to have all of Carmel Bay and beach for her front yard.

The house itself is unique in its architecture, being of the Zuni type with a strong Spanish influence. Entering from the San Antonio Street side, you find first a patio surrounded by a low wall and paved with rock. The dining room, immediately beyond is on a level with the patio and is separated from it by large glass doors which help to give a sense of intimacy between the house and the garden. On this floor are the kitchen and bedrooms and on an upper level is the large living room from which is obtained the magnificent sea view.

The interior is a rough trowel finish of very old ivory with a trim of dull bronze. Spindle doors, and wrought iron fixtures of the conventionalized California poppy furnish the relief for the walls and a quaint staircase with a wrought iron railing connects the living room with the rooms on the lower level.

Mrs. Shipley has combined many utilitarian features with the aesthetic quality of her surroundings, among which is an electric steam radiator with thermostat which furnishes on demand both heat and hot water. A massive fireplace in the center with a grate for the dining room and one as well for the living room seems to be the motif of the house.

The builder, Geo. A. Millar, should be congratulated along with Mrs. Shipley on giving to Carmel a beauty spot which will endure as long as the sand dunes themselves.

A. T. Wynyard Wright and J. A. Crook have started a house out on the Point. The property was sold by Calvin C. Hogle, and L. E. Gottfried is the contractor. The architecture is semi Spanish with plaster inside and stucco outside.

Contractor Gottfried is starting a house for Mrs. C. F. Jarvis, next to her present residence on San Antonio.

R. W. Johnson of the Carmel Investment Co. sold to H. W Turner two lots on north Camino Real, adjoining the buyer's other property. Mr. Johnson reports considerable inquiry for rentals, owing no doubt to the school vacations in the bay cities.

Mrs. Alice Y. Nugent is building a house on north Monte Verde, with Percy Parkes as architect and contractor. This builder is also erecting a one-story residence on his own property at the end of Dolores street. It has a beautiful view overlooking both the valley and the ocean.

Ray C De Yoe made some interesting sales during the past week. He sold to Mrs. C. L. Place of Palo Alto the eighty feet on San Antonio between Seventh and Eighth formerly belonging to Mrs. Karl G. Rendtorff. Mr. De Yoe also handled the sale of J. O. Ohler's lots on the Point, just south of E. G. Kuster's new home. S. D. Townley of Stanford University is the new contractor.

Mrs. Elizabeth K. Elliott is starting her house opposite the Van Ripers, with John B. Dennis as her contractor.

Gertrude McCaslin has bought property on Monte Verde, through Calvin C. Hogle.

For the first time in history farmers are to be provided with motorized fire apparatus to protect farm property. The county commissioners of Salt Lake have authorized the purchase of a combination motor pump, costing $9,000, to protect farm houses in the vicinity of Salt Lake. Of course there are no fire hydrants in the rural districts, but it is proposed to pump from irrigation ditches, ponds and cisterns.

A city of $2,000,000 valuation and one little hand-drawn chemical to protect it from Fire.

ARE YOUR ELECTRIC LIGHTS SATISFACTORY?

The voltage furnished by the Coast Valleys Gas and Electric Company in Carmel is 115 volts and this is the kind of lamp which should be used by electric lighting consumers in this territory.

On all standard lamps the voltage is plainly marked on a paper tag glued on the neck of the lamp. If lamps of higher voltage rating are used the light received from them will be dim and unsatisfactory. If lamps of lower voltage rating are used, they will burn out quickly and will not give the length of service to which the customer is entitled.

Any trouble with the electric service should be promptly reported to the district office of the Coast Valleys Gas and Electric Company in Monterey. If this is done, prompt attention will be given by employees of the company and the trouble removed as quickly as possible.

ONE LITTLE MAN

There was a little man
And he bought a little lot
And he paid the sum of ten whole dollars down,
After which he went away
And remained for many-a day,
Residing in a very distant town.

He recked not of taxation
Nor any such vexation,
He made no further payment on his lot;
But he never went to sleep.—
When land values took a leap
That little man was Johnny-on-the-Spot.

He suddenly returned,
His heart within him burned,
He saw his chance and straight away he took it;
He sold his little lot.—
Four hundred plunks he got!
Now wasn't he the clever chap to hook it?

Yet no bliss is unbounded,
And business is founded
On certain laws that cannot be gainsaid;
Though he recked not of taxation,
He learned to his vexation
That things of this sort always must be paid.

The Real Estate concern
Made his pale cheeks hotly burn
By telling him the sum had been subtracted
Already from the check
In payment for his shack.—
Which made him temporarily distracted

ANOTHER LITTLE MAN

There was a little man
And he bought a little lot
And he built a little cardboard house thereon;
His intention was to settle
Down and try his bally mettle
With writing copiously from dark till dawn.

But he hadn't reasoned rightly,
For as he sat there nightly,
Pursuing many-a vague and futile theme,
He found his thoughts inclining
(In spite of his repining)
With matters quite extraneous to teem.

These matters, briefly stated,
Were one and all related
To the little cardboard house in which he sat;
In short, he contemplated,
With breath discreetly bated,
Making a mint of money out of that.

So frightfully commercial!
It was, indeed.—But where shall
A writer find his sustenance withal?
Not in his pen productions,
For all their sweet seductions,—
That were the worst illusion of them all.

And our hero wanted money,
Although it may seen funny,
So one day he plucked an agent by the sleeve:
"If you can sell my shanty
For a sum that's not too scanty,
Then, my dear man, I hereby give you leave"

Which practically finishes
The story, which diminishes
To just one simple, brief, concluding item:
The agent sold the shanty
And the price was far from scanty.—
But, as ever, fleas have other fleas to bite 'em.

Pine Needles

The local public school and the high school at Monterey will enjoy the regular Easter vacation next week.

Our old college chum, H. W. Chadney, has been selected to preside in the Police Court in Monterey. Here's to you, Judge.

Miss Genevieve McAdam announces the re-opening of ball-room dancing classes at Arts and Crafts Hall next Monday evening.

George L. Carroll and family, former residents of Pebble Beach, are now occupying a cottage in Carmel, and may build here.

The good news comes from Fullerton, Orange county, that a baby girl has come to gladden the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hale.

The registration is open for those who desire to vote in the August primary and November general elections. Do it now at the Pine Cone office.

Easter comes a week from next Sunday—April 16th. Take a ramble through the forest and keep a sharp eye for the rabbits; they're already hopping about amongst the wild-flowers.

The Misses Louise and Esther Hayes, formerly of Berkeley and of Nutley, N. J., will open a tea room at the El Monte Verde on April 9th. Luncheons, afternoon teas and dinners will be served.

Miss Margaret Day of Ashland, Ohio, a pupil of the Portia Mansfield school won the swim and also the tennis cup at Del Monte last week. The runner-up in both events was Miss Dorothy Davis of Colorado Springs.

There was general apathy in the school elections throughout the county last Friday. In Carmel Mrs. Florence Spoehr was elected to suceed Peter Taylor, and W. T. Kibbler will succeed himself on the Monterey High School board.

B. W. Adams and son, Floyd, are leaving Carmel. Mr. Adams is going back to his old love, the Forest Service. He has successfully passed the civil service examination, and for the present will be a ranger in the Stanislaus National Forest.

Many residents and visitors in Carmel will remember the large tryptich of Carmel mountains and bay painted by Laura W. Maxwell and on exhibition in her studio. This picture has been purchased by art connoisseurs of Chicago. Mrs Maxwell has also lately sold several of her charming garden pictures.

An even dozen party of Carmelenos attended the foolish dance at the Monterey Auditorium last Saturday night. Of the three prizes awarded, members of this party took two—Mrs. W. A. Swain and Bill Nye for the old fashioned waltz, and Miss Marian Daniels and W. A. Swain for the best costumes.

It is the purpose of the Victory Highway Association to promote the building of a first class, passable and permanent highway across the continent from New York to San Francisco. The weakest link in this chain is the section across Northern Nevada. The importance of this part of the road is emphasized by the fact that it has been made the primary route across Nevada for the expenditure of Federal funds.

Spring Gowns on View

Miss Brouhard of the Specialty Shop, 445 Alvarado street, Monterey, has just received a new line of Spring dresses in Organdie, French Gingham, and Crepe; prices reasonable. She has also a line of summer sweaters, all shades. adv

Portland, Oregon, recently purchased a Stutz triple combination apparatus of large capacity.

Purely Personal Paragraphs

Grace Graham is in Carmel for a month's stay.

Eleanor and Helen Hicks spent last week in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Morse spent a vacation here last week.

Mrs. Mary L. Hamlin is home again. She has been visiting in the East for several months.

Captain and Mrs. C. H. Howell spent the last week end with the William L. Maxwells.

Miss Eva Belle Adams has returned to her home here. She has been in Pasadena for some time.

Florence M. McAuliffe, prominent San Francisco attorney, was a Pine Cone visitor on Tuesday.

Dr. D. T. MacDougal, director of the Carnegie Institute and of the Carmel laboratory, is here from Tucson.

Twelve members of the Perry-Swett dancing school started off on a horse back trip down to the Big Sur last Sunday.

Harry S. McDonald of Camp Bennington, Georgia, is here on a furlough, visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Allan McDonald.

The sister of Ralph W. Hicks, Mrs. Cora J. Holmes, passed away in San Francisco on March 20th. Mr. and Mrs. Hicks attended the funeral.

Miss Helen Rosenkrans and Miss Eleanor Abercrombie left for their home in Wisconsin last Saturday morning. They threaten to return.

Mrs. Mary Chamberlain, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Eva, came down from San Francisco on Monday to spend a few days with Fenton P. Foster.

R. C. Storie of San Jose was a week-end visitor here. The sympathy of all of his Carmel friends will go out to him in his bereavement, he having recently lost his wife.

C. R. McCollom spent a night here recently with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. McCollom, taking their guest, Mrs. Harry McCollom of Chicago, back to Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Burns and their friend, Miss B. M. Brotherton, have rented the Scott cottage for six months or longer. The Burns were here for a considerable period last summer.

Friends Drop In Unexpectedly

The friends of Mrs. W. L. Overstreet tendered her a surprise party on her birthday last Thursday evening. It was a genuine surprise, too, and the gay ones who pulled it off did a darn good job, as the events of the evening proved. The following were in on it: Mr. and Mrs. George Seideneck, Mrs. Genevieve Daniel, Mrs. Grant Wallace, Misses Marian and Nancie Daniels, Miss Edith Chilver, Miss Phyllis Overstreet, H. E. Nye, Herbert Heron, Kameula Searle, Hal Bragg, De Witt Appleton, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Overstreet.

A city hall designed and superintended by our City Planning Commission, which consists of such well-known people as C. Sumner Greene, Jessie Arms Botke, Dr. Alfred Burton and Valentine Mott Porter, would go far toward preserving the ideals of beauty and appropriateness for which Carmel stands.

The sand dunes were bought through pure sentiment. When sentiment is combined with protection to life and property, sound business judgment and good finance, immediate action is imperative.

"Ghosts" Will Not Materialize

It has been found that the proposed production of "Ghosts," while not directly interfering with the work which has already begun on the Fourth of July production of the Forest Theater, would require an amount of time and energy which would bring some of the workers tired to the more important production. So it has been decided to postpone "Ghosts" until after the performance of "Caesar and Cleopatra." The Carmel Repertory Players feel that as a limited group their production should always be held secondary to the larger community work.
